

National Women's Team

The Italian Federation of Women's Football was founded in 1968, the year the first two-group season began. The real A series women's league started in 1970. The first world level tournament was played in China in 1988, and was won by Norway.